Collecting and Curating

This ArtReach for Adults program focuses on ceramics as well as two-dimensional works of art in Boise Art Museum's Permanent Collection. Participants will talk about the formation and importance of collections and generate their own artful collections with clay.

Learning Objectives

- Participants will discuss the similarities and differences between pieces in the Museum's Permanent Collection.
- Participants will learn how museum curators decide to display artwork and will explore different ways to group the artwork.
- Participants will come to understand that a collection can be made of anything that has similar characteristics.
- After the presentation, participants will apply what they have learned by creating a collection of clay objects that will have something in common.
